Announcement that the United States visible supply of wheat showed an increase of only 528,000 bushels for the week, whereas a much larger gain had been looked for, counted somewhat as a handicap to bears. Throughout the day, too, it was noticeable that there was an absence of any decided pressure to sell, notwithstanding that primary receipts over the Christmas holiday were about the largest ever known, expecially in the southwest.

Although hig arrivals of corn hard had & depressing effect at first on prices for corn and oats, a rally took place later as a result of wheat
